The congregation, with an average age of 40, includes diverse family compositions such as young adults, families, widows, and those who are separated or divorced.

FCC emphasizes bible study groups, discipleship, evangelism, preaching and worship as pathways for spiritual growth and maturity into a deeper relationship with Christ for both families and individuals.

The church thrives through small groups, mission projects, and active ministries, including Praise and Worship, Men, Women, Youth, Young Adults, and Children's Ministries to grow generations of spiritually mature and ministry engaged community of believers. FCC also engages in community outreach, supports international missions, and is self-sustaining through donations that directly fund ministries and charitable efforts.

FCC operates under a plurality of Elders leadership model and has navigated leadership transitions effectively, demonstrating flexibility and resilience. Worship style is blended but predominantly contemporary, with a focus on the Great Commission.
